By-stander Behavior

In 2007, Mike partnered with renowned academic and researcher Dr. Alan Berkowitz to develop the Response Ability project. Response Ability directly addresses so-called “bystander behavior” – those times when a person observes something, recognizes it to be problematic, but fails to intervene in a constructive way. In this challenging program, Mike reveals the barriers many of us feel when we consider whether or not to act. Using interactive methods, Mike gives audience members the skills and framework upon which to act when they see unhealthy or negative behavior among their peers, in their classes, and on their campus.
